Art Unit: 2635

1. This Office action is in response to the application filed January 30, 2002. Claims 1-2 are pending.

2. The subject matter of this application admits of illustration by a drawing to facilitate understanding of the invention. Applicant is required to furnish a drawing under 37 CFR 1.81.

No new matter may be introduced in the required drawing.

3. An examination of this application reveals that applicant is unfamiliar with patent prosecution procedure. While an inventor may prosecute the application, lack of skill in this field usually acts as a liability in affording the maximum protection for the invention disclosed.

Applicant is advised to secure the services of a registered patent attorney or agent to prosecute the application, since the value of a patent is largely dependent upon skilled preparation and prosecution. The Office cannot aid in selecting an attorney or agent.

Applicant is advised of the availability of the publication "Attorneys and Agents Registered to Practice Before the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office." This publication is for sale by the Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402.

4. Claims 1-2 are rejected as failing to define the invention in the manner required by 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph.

The claim(s) are narrative in form and replete with indefinite and functional or operational language. The structure which goes to make up the device must be clearly and positively specified. The structure must be organized and correlated in such a manner as to present a complete operative device. The claim(s) must be in one sentence form only. Note the format of the claims in the patent(s) cited.

Art Unit: 2635

Regarding claims 1 and 2, the claims appear to recite both a computer program and a keyboard. It is not clear what constitutes the invention and the elements thereof. The claims also merely recite the desired functionality and not the specific elements to perform the functions and their relationship to each other.

5. The following is a quotation of the first paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall contain a written description of the invention, and of the manner and process of making and using it, in such full, clear, concise, and exact terms as to enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and use the same and shall set forth the best mode contemplated by the inventor of carrying out his invention.

6. Claims 1-2 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, as failing to comply with the enablement requirement. The claim(s) contains subject matter which was not described in the specification in such a way as to enable one skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and/or use the invention. The claims fails to teach how to make the apparatus which performs the desired function of having multiple functions depending on the number of time a key is struck and the duration.

7. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

8. Claims 1-2 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Beers.

Regarding claims 1-2, due to the indefinite nature of the claims a best-efforts attempt has been made to apply what appears to be relevant art. Thus, the rejection should not be interpreted as the only relevant art or definitive. Beers teaches a calculator that has multiple functions per key. It is suggested that the multifunction key may also be used for a computer. The determination of the functions is based on key press duration and the number of times a key is pressed. It would have been obvious to use the input for a word processor since Beers suggest the use of multifunction keys in a computer system. Word processing programs are conventional on computer systems. Further, it would have been obvious to associate upper and lower case letters to particular keys. In conventional keyboards the same key is used for upper and lower case. The selection is done via a shift key. Beers teaches the association of multiple functions to a key without the need for a shift key. The selection is based upon the number of pressings. It would have been obvious to select upper and lower case letters by using the method taught in Beers because any two functions may be associated with a key and it is logical to use the functions which are conventional with existing keyboards so that the user does not memorize a new layout.

9. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Although all of the art cited is considered pertinent, the Examiner considers Lui and Jones to be of particular interest.

10. Any inquiry concerning this communication or earlier communications from the examiner should be directed to Albert K Wong whose telephone number is 571-272-3057. The examiner can normally be reached on M-Th.
